Re: Genetic Engineering

To Whom it May Concern:

I feel all food genetically engineered or genetically modified in some way should have clear labels indicating that this food has been altered.

If manufacturers only use the term "value-added foods" they are misleading consumers. Not all consumers know what this term means. No one knows what the long-term affects are of genetically engineered food. Consumers should have the choice of what foods they want to purchase. Freedom of choice. This should be done with clear labeling.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Very truly yours,
